ALL SORTS.

Ole Olson tonight.

D. O. Mills is expected in Carson this week.

John Saffell and Wright and J. W. Holbrook returned from the Fair yesterday.

The Cripple Creek miners have accepted the reduction in wages and the trouble is ended.

A dispatch from Dallas, Texas, says that 60 people were killed by a cyclone in the little town of Emory yesterday.

The Seigniorage Bill went to the President yesterday. It is expected that he will give the matter thorough consideration before acting.

Judge Hubbard has given judgment aggregating over $1,600,000, for Fox, in the Hale and Norcross suit, and the defendants appealed.

John Coops, Dennis Gleason, and Martin Larsen were held up between Empire and Brunswick, Sunday night, by two highwaymen and released them of their loose coin, $1.25.

Now is the time of the year that residents of Carson should begin to clean up the streets, alleys, and backyards adjoining their premises as this filth only creates the germ of diseases thereby causing a great deal of sickness during the summer months. All should commence to attend to this matter at once as it will in all probability save considerable sickness in our town.

One of the devices which are under consideration for the purpose of drawing crowds to the exposition is a contest between a big grizzly and one of Boones' Nubian lions. The recent action of the lion in breaking through a cage partition and killing a little brown bear has suggested the contest referred to. There is a big grizzly in the '49 Camp now, the only one now in captivity, and arrangements are on foot looking towards the pitting of these big brutes in an improvised arena around which 100,000 people can be gathered. Such a contest has never taken place in the history of the world, and the sporting element are exceedingly anxious to see it come off.

"OLE OLSEN."

The Swedish Play Will be Given at the Carson Opera House.

"Ole Olson" will appear at Carson Opera House this evening. The San Francisco Chronicle says of it:

"The new manager of Stockwell's Theater, J. P. Howe, opened his venture last night with 'Ole Olson,' the Swedish play which has been touring the country now for some years, and still seems to draw pleased audiences. The house was filled down stairs and crowded in the upper part, and the play and the principal characters—notably McAlpine, Miss St. George Hussey, Dolly Foster and Colonel Albert Huebner, on the bill as 28 years old and thirty-six inches high—were installed favorites with the audience. The play went with constant laughter and applause, which, considering 'Ole Olson' has been here before, is very complimentary to it and the production. It promises to do a good week's business."

The Pollard Case.

Washington, March 14.—Today there was a large attendance of Washington's best society to listen to the details of the Pollard-Breckenridge case, as the details threatened to be spicy. The court room was ordered cleared. The society had a who had to leave the room, are very indignant and a mass meeting at the parlors of the Willard Hotel. Several speeches were made and it was resolved to pass a bill in Congress allowing ladies to occupy front seats in divorce trials. Several female suffrage women addressed the meeting. In the afternoon the lawyers in the case exchanged some complimentary epithets, and on several occasions Miss Pollard fainted. Old Breckenridge blushed twice.—Midwinter Appeal.

Row in Carson.

Carson Nev., March 15.—Several members of the new Athletic Corporation at Reno, called on the Governor today to know if he would allow the Corbett-Jackson fight to be pulled off in Reno. On the refusal of the Governor they attempted to clean out the Executive Chamber, but were all licked and pitched out by Underleith, the Private Secretary. Sec'y Boyle was thrown over the Capitol fence.—Midwinter Appeal.

MISINFORMED.

Who Murdered Mrs. Eggleston Last Week?

Last week the APPEAL published an account of the capture of Dick Watkins, stating he was alleged to be the murderer of old Mrs. Eggleston in Antelope Valley over a week ago. Our information was taken from a private letter written to a young lady in Carson from a young lady friend in Genoa. The letter stated the matter as being an absolute fact, and a subsequent letter from the same lady confirmed the first report.

The APPEAL had no choice but publish the facts as they reached this office, and owing to limited facilities was unable to communicate with parties at the scene of the homicide.

We have since been informed that there was absolutely no truth in the report that Dick Watkins had been arrested or even suspected, and that Mr. Watkins took no action in the matter of the sale of the property other than directed by the Court.

Even now it is impossible for the APPEAL to verify either side of the story, as both informants are equally positive in their statements, but if we have unwittingly wronged Mr. Watkins we apologise and will do all in our power to make reparation.

District Attorney Hayes, of Mono county, and Mr. Snow of the Coroner's jury, arrived yesterday and made arrangements with the County Commissioners to permit the exhuming of the body of the murdered woman, and engaged Dr. Lee to hold an autopsy on the remains of the deceased. They report the Coroner's jury still holding session with closed doors and the District Attorney is confident that the perpetrator of the crime has been located and will be brought to justice.

Row in the Appeal Office.

Yesterday the armed guards of the Administration building swooped down on the Appeal office and attempted to move the type and machinery. The Appeal was taken completely by surprise. Two men without uniforms came in and placing crow-bars under the press attempted to lift it, but as it was spiked to the floor they were unable to move it.

General Bouton and his son, who were in the office at the time, jumped these guards and beat them nearly to death. The General had his eye blacked and his son was badly bruised about the face.

In the evening the proprietor of the paper had the guards arrested and will prosecute them in the Justice Court.

The press is still running and the paper will come out as usual. The Committee insists that we shall quit running advertisements in the Appeal, or take the machinery off the grounds. This we decline to do, as the contracts are mostly for six months and the press has been rented for the same time.

The next guard that tackles the Appeal will be filled with buckshot.—Midwinter Appeal.

Short Stories.

The April number of Short Stories is unusually interesting, and offers to the readers of this entertaining magazine a fine collection of stories appropriately illustrated. Among the original tales worthy of note are: "Heir to His Affection," by S. Elgar Benet; "The Neighbor of the Hawes," an ingenious story of a detective's adventure with the moonshiners, by R. Shackleton Jr.; and "Elise, a Virginia Aquarelle," a pathetic and interesting sketch of a Southern college town, by Georgiana Peel. There are also translations from French and Danish authors, and English writers are represented by such names as W. E. Norris, Gilbert Parker, Anthony Hope and Grant Allen.

A special prize is offered in the April number of Short Stories for a "Summer" story of from 4000 to 6000 words, the competition closing June 1st.

Announcement is also made this month that a special feature of the May number will be an interesting story written for Short Stories by Edgar Fawcett.

Judge Crawford at Santa Rosa has decided that Mrs. Elizabeth Bryan, Mrs. Mary Fowler and John Bryan, the alleged murderers of the blind sister of the first two, Nancy Meagher, are entitled to bail pending their trial. Bail has been fixed at $5,000 each.

A SUSPECTED MURDERER.—According to the news received from Bridgeport all evidence points to the fact that a woman committed the recent horrible murder of Mrs. Eggleston in Antelope Valley. The accused woman lives half a mile from the scene of the murder, and claims to have slept with Mrs. Eggleston on the night she had the foreboding dream. The woman is said to have a fiery temper, and to have made an attempt on the life of Mrs. Eggleston about a year ago. Since then, however, they made up and have been good friends.

Attention is called to the advertisement of the Cyclone Windmill in another part of the paper. These mills are widely known and have a great reputation for strength, durability, and simplicity of construction, making it impossible for them to get out of order, and the same time they can stand anything short of a hurricane.

The Mid-Winter Appeal was printed on green paper last week "to catch the Irish nickel," says the publisher.
